

THE SIDE HALL

The watercolor portrait of the house was done by Charles Ambrose before the columns were put on the house. Originally it had a one-story porch that matched the side porch. In 1972 James found the four columns from a house in Jackson that had been torn down that had been built about the same time as Turner House and the porch roof was cut and jacked up and the columns were inserted.

The pen and ink drawing of St. Andrews Episcopal church in Hale county Alabama was the church where James grandfather and grandmother Turner were married.

Charles Dana Gibson drawing. He did the Gibson girls. When Mr. and Mrs. Turner were on their honeymoon in January of 1905 they went out west. The train was marooned on the Rockies for several day and on the train, in the pullman car, was Irene Gibson, who was the wife of Charles Gibson.
