

THE POETS PARLOR

The Poets Parlor was originally an open porch and it was closed in and the book shelves and wall of glass were put in.

The train up on the top shelf was one of James' toys as a child.

The English bracket clock on the French writing table is in burl walnut.

The cut glass on the vitrine is Wedgwood which was part of Mrs. Turners' wedding presents.

The marble mantle was added.

James Turner's novel "One Fine Spring"